

Beaches are a feast to the eyes, a trailing bed to relax & warm and also a place to unleash the wild sporting instincts. Glorifying examples of the amazing effects of the threatening & loving water, beaches are a true gift. South Africa, being surrounded by oceans on all three sides enjoys many of the world's best beaches. The coastline is stunningly beautiful and is a divine treat to everyone looking to capture beauty through lenses.

South Africa cradles a large number of beaches. The beaches are groomed to welcome the visitors. Wondering how beaches can be groomed? The South African beaches are awarded the 'Blue Flag' that stamps the beaches as environmentally adhered, clean and safe. More than 29 sizzling South African beaches have been awarded the Blue Flag. This adds to the highlights of the beaches.

The beaches are a destination not just for beauty and sunshine, but also for thrilling and exhilarating water games. South African beaches are an inevitable choice for water surfers. The surfing spots are a long list and each of the spots guarantee a wonderful and satisfying experience to the surfer. The surfing spots in the country are the chosen one by most of the skilled and famous surfers from all around the globe. Surfing in the South African beaches assures great scenery, perfect surf and also a good amount of safety.

The beaches are the best in the world for surfing, swimming and exploration. The country has the white-sand beaches and also beaches that offer a good sight of whales occasionally. It will be a tough task to pick out the best of the South African beaches, but there are a few exceptionally beautiful and famous beaches that are never to be missed a visit. They are:

- Eastern Cape : East London, Port Elizabeth, Port St. John's

